

SINCERE APOLOGIES AUDIENCE COMMENTS (from Melbourne Fringe season)

What an incredible experience, building trust with a room filled with strangers instantly, whilst exploring the role of apologies now and in the future. Wonderfully crafted. Still thinking about it!!

Vally S

Great show! Saddening moments, maddening moments, and the right amount of comic relief. The audience participation isn't 'scary' and was a great device that made the room feel connected. Recommended!

Angie

This was a great piece of beautifully crafted participation theatre. I left full of thought and fascinated by the multiple meanings of sorry. It was hilarious and devastating and very very human

Sue

I love this work! I want to tell you about the surprising innovation and extraordinary way it tells its stories, but this would spoil it. Overwhelming, moving, emotional and exciting.

Greg

Surprisingly moving in many places, also laugh out loud funny, I left feeling a part of a community and that was beautiful

Tom

Surprisingly moving. How easy is it to say "sorry". Innovative and engaging xx

Jacqueline

Such an innovative and thought provoking show. Congratulations to the creative team. Certainly recommended.

James

Very thoughtful show, and a great experience to share!

Megan

A show that digs into your psyche, how we apologise, why it matters. We left debating history's great apologies and the ones that could still change the world

Bernie

This show suprised me - clever, original, unexpected and moving. I left the theatre unable to stop thinking about it. You'll be 'sorry' if you miss this one.

Felicity

It was a really enjoyable way to spend a Sunday afternoon. Humorous, thought provoking interlaced with personal story arcs. Highly recommend.

Janice

A thoughtful and thought-provoking insight into how we apologise. And how we really don't! Audience engagement makes this all the more real and personal. Highly recommended.

Stephen

This was very moving. The original delivery meant I had to listen in a very different way, which made it even more thought-provoking. Felt like I was a part of something very important. Loved it!

Tanya

It's a rare and beautiful thing to make something together as an audience. Thank you!!! (Sorry if I wasn't as good as I think I was.)

Paul

There was a good mix of humor, thoughtful moments and points that were touching. The apologies flowed into each other very well, moving the mood of the show in a way that kept it engaging.

Tony

Intriguing ambiguous and also fun.

Carmen

Do NOT miss this! Expertly crafted, spanning intimate vulnerable moments to shameful global contexts that implicate all. Playful, disarming, powerful.

MH

Inviting you into the circle and to the mic to share the discomfort and responsibility of apology. From token words to public retribution to personal heartbreak. Poignant, funny, and deeply human.

Lynda

It was a brave concept and a really lovely supportive atmosphere like none I have ever experienced. It was thought provoking and we all chatted about it long after! Go see it!
